

Developing Ministries of Mercy

Basic Annotated Bibliography

Harvie M. Conn,
*Evangelism
Doing Justice
and Preaching Grace,*
P&R Publishing 1982,
ISBN 0-87552-206-8

Harvie M. Conn writes that the church must do more. Many churches do evangelism and forget social issues. Other churches focus so tightly on social issues that the gospel gets lost. Harvie's point is not either evangelism or social issues. Harvie makes a point that if you are truly evangelical you must address social issues. Also, if you are truly addressing social issues you must include the gospel.

Timothy J. Keller,
*Ministries of Mercy 2nd Ed.
The call of the Jericho Road*
P&R Publishing 1997
ISBN 978-0-87552-237-3

Timothy J. Keller does a great job of putting the indicative before the imperative. The book makes a strong case for churches being involved in ministries of mercy both inside of and outside of the church. Secondly, the book gives a clear outline of how to take a church from where they are to identifying, and then initiating ministries of mercy for their community.

John Perkins
*With Justice for All 3rd Ed
Regal 2007*
ISBN 978-08307-4495-4

John Perkins shares his experiences and message based on his years in the civil rights movements and his time at Mendenhall. Over the years he and his ministry transformed this community and to this day it is a jewel in a land of struggle. John raises the three R's of ministry: First relocation, second reconciliation, and third restitution.
